COLLEGE FLYING PROGRESSES

The second annual Intercollegiate Aeronautical Conference, in which the Cornell Flying Club has membership, was held at Detroit, Mich., in April in connection with the All-American Aircraft Show.

Speakers expressed the opinion that aviation in the colleges and universities seemed destined to develop along two lines. One is the establishment of college courses in flying as a part of the regular curriculum. The other is the founding of aviation clubs among students and the extension of flying as a competitive college sport.

1904 CLASS DINNER

The annual 1904 dinner will be held at the New York Cornell Club on May 6. It will be the last get-together before the twenty-fifth year reunion. Reservations may be made with Clarence G. Spencer, 17 Battery Place, New York.

SPIKED SHOE, honorary track society, has elected Charles E. Baker '29, Aberdeen Md.; Harry W. Crawford '29, Verona, N. J.; Robert A. Dyer '29, Berne; Edward M. Tourtelot, Jr., '29, Palos Park, Ill.; Samuel R. Levering '30, The Hollow, Va.; and Frank J. Weis '20, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Dr. Jaeger to Speak

New Information on the Arrangement of Atomic Structure in Molecules to Be Disclosed

Although he has been in America only a short time, Professor Frans M. Jaeger of the University of Groningen, Netherlands, George F. Baker Non-Resident Lecturer in Chemistry, is the subject of a special story distributed by the Associated Press, which describes the course he is teaching. Right and left-handed patterns of atomic arrangement in molecules are explained in this course.

There are substances built up by equal members of the same atoms, differing only in configuration analogous to the differences between two gloves of a pair. For, although the most common commercial properties of right and left-handed phases are the same, they differ widely in their effects on the human body. Nicotine is an example.

A synthetic form of nicotine exists quite different in its effects from that present in smoking tobacco. This nicotine is two-fold less poisonous than the form produced by nature. The molecular pattern in the natural product is left-handed, while the synthetic nicotine has its atoms arranged in a right-handed form.

It is too difficult and expensive to make this synthetic nicotine by present methods for commercial production. "And perhaps its effect would be so different that tobacco users would not care for it."

Dr. Jaeger is to speak at the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the American Chemical Society. He will be one of the speakers at a "Symposium on Molecular Structure." According to an announcement, he "will tell of his x-ray explorations into the elusive structure of ultra-marine, which has puzzled scientists for a century. Dr. Jaeger has discovered that the beautiful blue tone of this mineral, once rare and highly prized as lapis lazuli, now so common that it is used as laundry bluing, is due to an errant sulphur atom, which wanders at will throughout the whole crystalline mass."

DR. CRAWFORD HONORED

Dr. Mary M. Crawford, medical director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, has been appointed head of the health service for the staff members of the American Woman's Association.

ATHLETICS

Nine Breaks Even

The baseball team broke even in two games played last week. The nine defeated St. Bonaventure, 4 to 3, April 24, and lost by the same score, although it was a sixteen-inning game, to Princeton on April 27. Both games were played on Hoy Field.

Lewis's fine hurling was a factor in the win over St. Bonaventure, only five hits being recorded against him. Poor fielding, however, gave several opportunities to the visitors, but in the pinches, Lewis was given good support.

St. Bonaventure scored two runs in the fourth inning on Steiff's error, a sacrifice, and a double by Rooney, visiting catcher. Cornell tied the score in the same frame. Cushman singled and went to second when the outfielder played the ball badly. Steiff scored Cushman with a single, but the batter was run down between first and second on the play. Crosby walked and Donnelly singled. Gichner forced Donnelly at second, and on the play, Crosby scored.

Each team scored a run in the sixth. Cornell won in the seventh when, with one out, Hebert was safe on an infield error. Kohn struck out, but Cushman's long single scored Hebert.

The Princeton game was a hard one to lose. Cornell was leading, 3 to 0, at the end of the eighth inning, and Boies, Red and White pitcher, had given only three hits. That ninth inning saw him weaken momentarily, and Tiger batsmen got four hits, including a triple by La Bhar, Tiger third baseman. Three runs, the last sent in by Emmett, a pinch hitter, who singled, were sent across the plate.

The pitchers settled down to the extra-inning task. In three of the seven extra frames, Cornell advanced a runner to third base, but each time he was stranded. Poor base running and the failure to try a little "inside" baseball cost the Red and White several fine chances to score.

Cornell used a pinch hitter, Moulton, in the fifteenth inning in the place of Kohn, first baseman. In the sixteenth, Cushman moved to first base from center field. McKinney, Tiger first sacker, hit a grounder, but Cushman, taking the throw wide of the bag and attempting to tag the runner, lost the ball, and McKinney was safe at second.

Bennett, Tiger right fielder, laid down a bunt and sacrificed McKinney to third base. La Bhar sent a towering fly to Moulton in center field, and McKinney scored after the fielder made the catch.

Steiff, first Cornell batter in the sixteenth, singled, and Crosby sacrificed him to second. Donnelly was safe on an infield error, but Steiff, attempting to reach third on the play, was thrown out, and Cornell's last chance to score was thrown away.

The Red and White nine started the scoring in the second inning, when Steiff, Donnelly, and Gichner singled. An error by Carter, Tiger catcher, contributed to Steiff's progress around the bases to the plate.

In the eighth, Cornell scored two more tallies, and the game appeared to be over. Gichner led off with a single and reached second when Heydt, Tiger hurler, misplayed Handleman's bunt. Boies singled, scoring Gichner. Hebert and Kohn fled out, but Handleman scored on Cushman's single, although Boies was thrown out at second on the play.

The ninth opened with singles by Strubing and Vogt. McKinney sacrificed the runners along, Strubing scoring. Bennett grounded out, but La Bhar tripled. He scored on Emmett's single to tie the score.

Boies worked well until the ninth inning. He gave only three hits in the first eight frames. During the sixteen innings, he struck out fourteen batters. Heydt, Princeton hurler, fanned five, but he was reached for thirteen hits.

Tie in Lacrosse

The lacrosse team, after two defeats, tied the strong Syracuse twelve on Alumni Field April 27 in an extra-period game, 4 to 4. Syracuse gained a two-point lead in the first thirty-minute period, but the strong attack developed by the Ithacans, with Allio and Gowdy leading, started a rally that resulted in the tying scores.

The game was fast throughout, with Syracuse breaking into an early lead on two goals by Morris, Orange in home. He scored the first four minutes after the opening whistle. Gowdy, Cornell captain and center, followed Morris's second tally with a fine goal on a pass from behind the net. Langley, Syracuse attack man, gave the visitors a two-point lead at the half with a goal in the last minute of play.

Moon, Cornell in home, scored the first goal of the second period in less than two minutes, but Tarbor got another for the Orange. It was then that Allio and Gowdy started the attack that brought two goals. Passwork near the Orange crease gave Cornell the openings, and Gitlow, Syracuse goalie, was unable to stop the drives at the net.

Freshmen Results

The freshman baseball team lost to Colgate at Hamilton, on April 27, 8 to 5. On Alumni Field on April 27, the freshman lacrosse team battled to a 3 to 3 tie with the Syracuse yearling twelve.

Stevens pitched for the Red and White nine, giving ten hits. Cornell outhit Colgate, but a home run by Carpenter, Colgate third baseman, with two men on base, gave the home team an advantage at the start of the contest.

Tennis Team Wins

The tennis team, playing its first outdoor home match, scored its second victory of the season on the Baker courts on April 27, defeating Colgate, 9-0. The Red and White net team has yet to lose an individual match. Cornell scored a clean sweep over Ohio State in its first encounter.

Relay Results

John F. Anderson '29, captain of the track team and a member of the 1928 American Olympic team, won the discus throw at the annual Pennsylvania Relay carnival at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, on April 27. Anderson's winning mark was 150 feet 3 inches, and it bettered the previous mark by more than four feet.

Worden of Cornell placed third in the hammer throw with a mark of 147 feet 8 3/4 inches, the event going to Black of Maine with a toss of 168 feet 1/2 inch. Worden also placed third in the javelin throw with a toss of 188 feet 1 inch. Myers of New York University set a new record for the event with a throw of 196 feet 3 3/4 inches.

Colyer tied for third place with five other competitors in the pole vault, won by Sturdy of Yale, who vaulted 13 feet 5/12 inches. The third place mark was 12 feet 6 inches.

Cornell's record of 17 minutes 51 1/2 seconds for the four-mile relay was beaten by Penn State with a mark of 17.48 3/5.

The American outdoor mile record of 9.17 1/2, held for many years by Tell Berna '12, was broken by Paavo Nurmi, Finland's star distance runner, in a special event. Nurmi ran the distance in 9.15 3/5, far short of the world's mark of 9.01 3/5, held by Edvin Wide of Sweden.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

PROFESSOR H. HORTON SHELDON of the department of physics of the New York University has demonstrated that New York's trillion cubic feet of air is charged with some 2,100 tons of dirt, dust, and cinders.

THE FIRST WOMEN to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa were the late Mrs. Lida Mason Hodge and Mrs. Ellen Hamilton Woodruff, both Vermont '75. Both women had higher marks than any men in the class. A portrait of Mrs. Hodge is printed in The Vermont Alumni Weekly for April 24.

A DINNER of Princeton trustees at the Nassau Inn on September 30, 1772, was billed by mine host William Hick as follows: 60 dinners at 2s., 6l.; 12 double bowls punch at 3s., 1l. 16s.; 17 bottles beer at 1s. 6d., 1l. 5s. 6d.; 21 bottles port wine at 5s., 5l. 5s.; 16 bottles Madeira at 5s., 4l.; 6 single bowls toddy at 1s., 6s.; total, 18l. 12s. 6d.

HELIOS, honorary agricultural society, has elected the following seniors: Stanford C. Bates, Adams; James E. Crouch, Albany; Albert E. Deer, Catskill; James Gibson, Holley; Paul B. Jones, West Springfield, Pa.; Samuel R. Levering, The Hollow, Va.; Rush S. Loomis, Burlington Flats; Earl B. Pattison, Port Henry; William C. Ritter, Chicopee, Mass.; Wayne E. BOOKS

A New Latin Grammar

Latin Grammar. By Herbert Charles Elmer '83, Professor Emeritus of Latin. New York. Macmillan. 1928. 19 cm., pp. xxii, 327.

Is There Need of Another Latin Grammar? By Herbert C. Elmer. Reprinted in part from The Classical Weekly, December 6, 13, 1926.

The old Harkness Latin Grammar contained 448 pages; Lane's, 584 pages; Allen and Greenough's, 488 pages; Gildersleeve and Lodge's, 550 pages; Bennett's, student's edition, 265 pages, complete edition, 497 pages. It will thus be seen that Professor Elmer has compressed the essentials of Latin grammar into a relatively small and fairly compact volume. But the virtue of conciseness is not the only one characteristic of the present volume. Elmer has given much attention to the pedagogy of the subject and in his pamphlet demonstrates the need of simpler and more logical statements of grammatical facts. The truth seems to be that Latin grammars have in too many instances been written with too much thought of English grammar and too little thought of the needs of the Latinist. E.g. one grammar states that volitive subjunctive substantive clauses are used with verbs signifying (1) to admonish, request, command, urge, persuade, induce, etc., (2) to grant, concede, permit, allow, etc., (3) to hinder, prevent, etc., (4) to decide, resolve, etc., (5) to strive, etc., and with two other types of expressions. Such a statement is open to three objections: the etc.'s are confusing, the fundamental principle is not expressed, and no Latin words are cited. Elmer describes them as "volitive clauses, commonly introduced by ut or, if negative, by ne or ut ne; used with verbs that involve expression of the will" and then gives plenty of Latin illustrative sentences.

Notably sensible is his treatment of the subjunctive, especially with reference to the supposed potential use. The old English grammars, with their seven auxiliary signs (may, can, must, etc.) of the "potential" mood, sadly bungled the matter; and some of the better Latin grammars are not free from it even yet (e.g. translating non laudaveris by "you can not praise" instead of "you will not have praised"). The situation is further complicated for students and translators by the fact that English has to a great degree lost the subjunctive. Elmer (p. 200) is forced to translate Quid est quod tibi magis placeat? by "What is there that would please you more?" But "would please" strictly implies a contingency (say, if you had it) not exactly present in the Latin sentence. We ought to be able to translate, "what is there that please (subjunctive) you more?"

To sum up, here is a grammar that is not only trustworthy from the point of view of exact scholarship, but eminently satisfactory from the point of view of the most rigorous pedagogy. Professor Elmer has rendered the scholarly world a great service. We predict that his grammar will speedily take a leading position among books of its kind. Prosit!

Bequeaths Brain

Dr. Daniel Smith Lamb's Brain to be Added to Wilder Collection at Cornell

The Wilder collection of brains will receive the brain of Dr. Daniel Smith Lamb, curator of the Army Medical Museum at Washington, D. C. Disposal of his brain to Cornell was included in his will, which also directed that his body be subjected to an autopsy.

In his will, Dr. Lamb prescribed the formula in which he thought his brain could best be preserved and carefully annotated facts of his life which he believed he might prove of value. He died of pneumonia, one of the six cases he suffered during his lifetime.

Dr. Lamb performed nearly 1,500 autopsies during his life. He was particularly noted for his autopsies on the bodies of the assassinated President Garfield and of Guiteau, who killed the President.

Dr. Lamb desired that death should not end his work in the field of medicine, and in his will he wrote:

"I, Daniel Smith Lamb, object to burial or incineration and had rather, after my death, and if practicable before any embalming is done, that an autopsy be made upon my body by some competent person, who will remove the brain and such other organs as it may be desirable to preserve."

The Wilder collection is one of the most noted brain collections in the United States.

ADULT EDUCATION

From James F. Lincoln's page in The Ohio State University Monthly for April we extract the following:

It is a very difficult thing for a student without any experience in the problems which he will meet in after life to judge what part of the education offered him has utility and what part has not, and I doubt if any of us will maintain that all of the things which are taught in the usual collegiate course are worth while to all students. However, after the student has had experience the need for and kind of education he wants becomes self-evident and not only is his zest for education enormously increased but the same knowledge offered to him will take its place in his mind with an understanding and with a co-ordination that will make his learning very much more rapid and very much more thorough than would have been the case before he had this experience in the outside world.

This need for adult education is not only to make more efficient workmen and better executives. One of its greatest needs is to give us the cultural development which will make it possible for us to live a life which is satisfying and happy. As our leisure increases, this problem becomes of greater importance. All of us know of many tragic cases of arrested development of people who start in with great promise and have, because of the removal of the spur of necessity, slumped into a condition of physical flabbiness and a mind permanently in neutral.

While it is self-evident that adult education will not eliminate all such cases yet it will at the proper time put into the way of these men and women who are coming into a period of leisure, the opportunity to keep themselves mentally alert by giving them the easy possibility of mental development. This will help eliminate the nervous, neurotic, bridge-playing loafers whose greatest mental effort consists in the retelling of the morning's newspaper headlines.

It is perhaps encouraging to know that Professor Thorndike has proved that each of us can, after graduation, learn even parrot-like, nearly as well as we did in school. However, because of our experience gained after leaving school, new knowledge can be much more easily co-ordinated and understood.

Appointments Made

Board of Trustees Promotes Six Faculty Members to Full Professorships—Names Two Trustees

Frank E. Gannett '98 and Bancroft Gherardi '93 were named by the Trustees at the full meeting of the board April 27 to places on the Committee on General Administration, succeeding to the vacancies created by the death of Thomas B. Wilson and the resignation of John L. Senior '01.

Six assistant professors were given the rank of full professor by the board. The appointees are Paul T. Homan, economics; Morris A. Copeland, economics; Jacob Papish, Ph.D. '21, chemistry; Dean F. Smiley '16, hygiene; Herbert D. Laube, law, and James B. Sumner, biochemistry.

Professor Smiley continues as men's medical adviser.

Instructors appointed to assistant professorships are James Hutton, the Classics; Paul F. O'Leary, economics; Walter H. French '19, English; William H. York, hygiene; Alva Gwin, hygiene; Charles O. Mackey, '26, heat power engineering; Everett M. Strong, Grad., electrical engineering; Lawrence A. Burckmyer, electrical engineering.

H. P. Camden of the University of Oregon was appointed assistant professor of architecture; F. R. Banforth, National Research Fellow of Harvard, was named assistant professor of mathematics. H. A. Barton, Bartol Research Fellow of Harvard, was named assistant professor of physics, and H. A. Verrell of Louisiana State University was named assistant professor of law. Professor Verrell will take over the courses of Assistant Professor William H. Farnham '18, who will be absent on leave to study at Harvard.

Dean Charles K. Burdick of the Law School was granted leave for the second term of 1929-30.

LEAVES CITY OFFICES

Albert W. Smith '78, one-time dean of the College of Engineering and former acting president of the University, has retired from public life in Ithaca. He was a member of two commissions governing phases of activity in the city, the Stewart Park Commission and the City Planning Commission. "Uncle Pete," however, is continuing the chairmanship of a "Beautify Ithaca" campaign now in progress.

IN The Tomahawk of Alpha Sigma Phi for March, apropos of the fourteenth national convention of the fraternity which is soon to be held at Cornell, there is an illustrated article on "Far Above Cayuga's Waters."

IN The New York Herald-Tribune Books for April 7 "Weather" by Professor Edward E. Free '06 and Travis Hoke is reviewed by Cecilia H. Payne.

The Week on the Campus

THE Cleveland Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Nikolai Sokoloff, gave two concerts here last week, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, thus making Ithaca a laundry stop for a symphony orchestra for the first time within our recollection. The first concert was one of the regular music series; the second was arranged with the cooperation of the Schiff Foundation. The Schiff Fund, I hope you remember, was given by Jacob Schiff to aid in the diffusion of German culture. During the War, as I hope you have forgotten, a nasty problem was settled by changing "diffusion" to "extermination" and "culture" to "Kultur." The fund has since been used as a lecture foundation. Now it looks as if we could make a further revision of the text. The Schiff committee, with the utmost propriety, contributed a sizable sum to the orchestra's expenses, and the concert consisted of an evening of great German music, Bach, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Brahms, Wagner, and Strauss. And the prices, for the whole of Bailey Hall, were seventy-five cents and a dollar. This is pretty close to a record for a first-class symphony orchestra.

MR. SOKOLOFF made an interesting remark to an interviewer for the Sun. Said he: "There seems to be a general awakening in the universities to the fact that a man is not really cultured if he leaves college tone deaf, musically disinclined, or without that delicate taste and sensibility that is the real mark of culture and breeding."

THE DRAMATIC CLUB and the Cercle Français united to produce Musset's charming comedy, "On ne Badine pas avec l'Amour." It was performed with grace and spirit. Special praise should be meted to those who took the leading roles, Mary Fuertes '31, Henry Guerlac '32, Harry Weiss '30, Ruth Robinson '32, Wilson D. Curry '31, and Meyer Rothwacks '31. When you add to the usual problems of the stage the difficulties of memorizing long parts in a foreign language and giving the illusion of a foreign tradition, you set the performers a momentous task.

THE FLOWER SHOW in Willard Straight Hall, which has been such a success in past years, was repeated over the week-end. Memorial Hall, the lobby, the library, and the terrace were transformed into a bower of voluptuous loveliness. The Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture put on the show, and Richard B. Farnham, formerly instructor in floriculture, was in general charge. A novelty this year was a display of "good" and "bad" arrangements of front lawns. This effort to educate the popular taste gives the carpers a chance to carp. What right have you to tell me that my "good" is really "bad"? Who are you to condemn my front yard? On what esthetic basis do you display for public derision a bed of pansies in a cut-down hot-water boiler, and a cluster of geraniums nodding within an automobile tire? Intrinsically, there is nothing more comic in a ring of rubber than in a ring of marble, nor, as a matter of abstract form, is a hot-water boiler uglier than a wooden window-box. I think you ought to label your "good" and "bad" displays "stylish" and "out of style."

THE ANNUAL Fuertes Memorial Speaking Contest was won by Landry Harwood, Jr., '30, who spoke on "The Development of a Nine-Foot Channel for the Mississippi System." Second and third places were taken by Alpheus F. Underhill '29 and Stanley W. Abbott '29 respectively.

THE CHESS CHAMPION of the University is Walter Muir '29, of Montreal. He has received a cup donated by the Board of Managers of Willard Straight Hall. Muir is also champion of the city of Montreal.

NO REPORT yet on the ping-pong championship, now in the semi-final stage. Let me hear no sneering. Before you mock, let's see how long you can hold a paddle against one of our runners-up.

THE STUDENT LAUNDRY AGENCY is going in for research. It is attempting to trace the history of the several laundry agencies conducted by Cornell students prior to the college year 1894-5, when the present organization was founded. DEAN DEXTER S. KIMBALL presented the John Fritz Gold Medal for 1929 to President Hoover at the Executive Mansion in Washington last Thursday. The presentation was made at a luncheon given by President Hoover to a distinguished group of engineers.

OH, YES—M. WILLIAM BRAY, Chairman of the New York State Democratic Party, addressed the Liberal Club on April 23 on

E. on "Radiant Energy"; Harry Letts lectured to the hoteliers on "Advertising in the Hotel Business"; and Professor A. L. Goodhart, of the University of Cambridge, spoke on April 27 on "Case Law in England."

THE MORSE CHAIN COMPANY, Ithaca's second largest industry, has been merged with the Borg-Warner Corporation of Chicago, a $90,000,000 corporation. The assets of the Morse Chain Company are more than $8,000,000. Frank L. Morse will remain the president of the Chain Works. This is an interesting chapter in the history of local industry. The company was founded in Trumansburg in 1893 by Mr. Morse and his brother, the late E. Fleet Morse '84. It was moved to Ithaca in 1904. Since then it has grown steadily, and has brought forth young in the form of the Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation, the Poole Manufacturing Company, makers of the Poole electric clock, and the Barr-Morse Corporation, manufacturers of typewriters and computing machines. These three companies are not included in the merger.

BIG IDEA for the week: "The greatest sin of the young lies in their youthfulness. Time cures this."—Newell Edson of the American Social Hygiene Association, addressing the Parent-Teachers Associations.

The banquet concluded a week-end of activities for the Law School. On April 26, the final moot court arguments were held, two members of the Pound Club, Charles L. Brayton '30 and Harrop A. Freeman '29, winning the final case. It was argued before a court consisting of Judge Learned Hand, Justice Rowland L. Davis '97, and Judge Schoonmaker.

Is Your Class listed for Reunion in June?

If so, it's none too soon to be thinking of costumes, for costumes can make or break a reunion. They're a mighty important part of the fun—and when given thought early, original ideas can be worked out most satisfactorily.

It's a part of our business, and we're glad to offer our services. Information, ideas, estimates and samples will be furnished promptly on request.

Are Your Books Identified?

All of us loan books. It is easily possible after finishing a book to put it on our own shelves before it is convenient to return it. It is embarrassing but it happens. Have bookplates with your name printed on them. What could be better for a Cornellian than the bookplates showing campus scenes?

Garden Books

My wife says that I make a garden with a book in one hand. There are worse ways. The only trouble is that the book does not show where the bug is which is waiting for my seed. Ask for our agriculture booklist.

The Old Model Remington Portable Typewriter $45⁰⁰

Not all Remington agencies have these old models. We had a few because the new model arrived nearly a year ahead of time. In a couple of months our stock will be gone. Are you interested?

What Service Should We Render to the Alumni?

We are mailing many items now and these, in many cases, were suggested to us. The latest item is bookplates. Some time in the future our Board of Directors may develop a better plan of cooperation with the Alumni. What would you suggest?
